New Orleans hosts first regional meeting of the Governor’s Task Force on Transportation Infrastructure Investment

NEW ORLEANS, La. – Regional leaders and stakeholders along with industry and economic development partners attended the first meeting of Governor John Bel Edwards’ Task Force on Transportation Infrastructure Investment. Hosted by GNO, Inc. and the New Orleans Regional Planning Commission, the meeting was held at the Louisiana Department of Transportation and Development’s Regional Transportation Management Center.

The group is co-chaired by DOTD Secretary Shawn Wilson, Ph.D. and Major General John Basilica, vice president and Gulf Coast district leader for HNTB Corporation. Among those in attendance were task force members from the area including Senate President John Alario and State Representative and Speaker Pro-Tempore Walt Leger. All modes of transportation were represented including regional ports, as well as freight and passenger rail advocates, aviation leaders, and engineering and construction representatives. Several private sector business leaders attended as well.

“This is another step in a very critical, but necessary process. I look forward to working collaboratively with this team of leaders representing the many regions and sectors from across the state,” said Dr. Wilson. “Over the next six months, the Task Force will craft a plan for Louisiana to meet its full potential as a leader in multimodal transportation. With sound and sustainable policy, DOTD can and will deliver a transportation system the people of Louisiana deserve when we agree to make the necessary investments.”

Citing the need to reinvest in our roads, bridges, and ports, and re-engage our federal partners, Gov. Edwards announced the Task Force in June 2016.

“For years, our aging infrastructure system has been neglected. Now, we face a $12 million backlog in transportation projects,” said New Orleans City Councilmember Jared C. Brossett. “To address this backlog, we have to start investing in our infrastructure and improving our transportation system. This task force is an important step in the right direction. It’s composed of a diverse group of stakeholders who have the expertise needed to develop sustainable short-term and long-term plans to fund our transportation networks and keep pace with our growing infrastructure needs.”

The duties of the task force include researching, identifying, and making specific actionable recommendations for achieving sufficient increased levels of recurring funding to address on-going needs in all modes of transportation. The task force will make recommendations to Gov. Edwards to improve infrastructure in the state by January 1, 2017.

"Yesterday's regional meeting of the Governor's Task Force on Transportation Infrastructure Investment was productive on many levels. It provided the Secretary and the Task Force a chance to hear about priorities of the regional parishes, and to learn about various funding possibilities. But, most of all, it was a significant step towards building a broad coalition to support strategic infrastructure investment for Louisiana's future," said Michael Hecht, President and CEO of Greater New Orleans, Inc.

Violence In The Workplace

What is workplace violence? Workplace violence is any act or threat of physical violence, harassment, intimidation, or other threatening disruptive behavior that occurs at the work site. It ranges from threats and verbal abuse to physical assaults and even homicide. It can affect and involve employees, clients, customers, visitors, and the public. Homicide is currently the fourth-leading cause of fatal occupational injuries in the United States in 2010, 505 were workplace homicides. Homicide is the leading cause of death for women in the workplace. However it manifests itself, workplace violence is a major concern for employers and employees nationwide.

Who is at risk of workplace violence? Nearly 2 million American workers report having been victims of workplace violence each year. Unfortunately many of these cases go unreported. The truth is, workplace violence can strike anywhere, anytime, and no one is immune. Research has identified factors that may increase the risk of violence for some workers at certain worksites. Such factors include exchanging money with the public and working with volatile, unstable people. Working alone or in isolated areas may also impact the likelihood of violence. Additionally, time of day and location of work, such as working late at night or in areas with high crime rates, are also risk factors that should be considered when addressing issues of workplace violence.

How can workplace violence hazards be reduced? In most workplaces where risk factors can be identified, the risk of assault can be prevented or minimized if employers take appropriate precautions. One of the best protection employers can offer their workers is to establish a zero-tolerance policy toward workplace violence. This policy should cover all workers, patients, clients, visitors, contractors, and anyone else who may come in contact with company personnel.

This can be a separate workplace violence prevention program or can be incorporated into an injury and illness prevention program, employee handbook, or manual of standard operating procedures. It is critical to ensure that all workers know the policy and understand that all claims of workplace violence will be investigated and remedied promptly. In addition, the Occupational and Safety Health Administration (OSHA) encourages employers to develop additional methods as necessary to protect employees in high risk industries.

Where can I get information on worker's rights and employers' responsibilities? This information can help you properly prepare to eliminate or reduce the likelihood of violence at your workplace. For other valuable protection information, such as Workers' Rights, Employer Responsibilities and other services OSHA offers, please visit www.osha.gov.

The information cited in this article was taken from the OSHA website. We encourage you to share this valuable information with your employees.

OSHA: Overview and Requirements - Celebrating Manufacturing Week Register

Tuesday, October 04, 2016 10:00 AM to 12:00 PM

Topic: Managing a Business

The LSBDC at ULM will be celebrating Manufacturer's Week 2016 by offering an overview of OSHA's (Occupational Safety and Health Administration) regulations and requirements. Under the OSH Act, employers are responsible for providing a safe and healthful workplace. OSHA's mission is to assure safe and healthful workplaces by setting and enforcing standards, and by providing training, outreach, education and assistance. Employers must comply with all applicable OSHA standards.

Employers must also comply with the General Duty Clause of the OSH Act, which requires employers to keep their workplace free of serious recognized hazards. This class would benefit any company that needs the first steps in becoming OSHA certified, looking for additional information on OSHA regulations, or needs a representative to help with the certification process.

Professional Selling Skills for Every Business Register

Thursday, October 27, 2016 11:00 AM to 1:00 PM

Topic: Marketing and Sales

Professional Selling Skills for Every Business is designed to help you, the business owner, take command of your personal and business sales efforts and increase your successful conversion rate! In today's highly competitive market, every entrepreneur, business owner, and organization is seeking to secure a greater share of the market. At the same time the consensus of the general public is to avoid pesky salespeople at all costs. Why is this? The reasons are many people don't trust salespeople, they are viewed as aggressive and pushy, and they try to sell you products and services that are not wanted or needed, just to name a few. Small wonder people don't like salespeople. There's a better way...the right way to sell the products and services you provide. It's called Professional Selling. This seminar will equip you to rise above conventional selling and position yourself (or organization) as a trusted provider that satisfies your customers' needs. This seminar will be a game changer for all who attend.
